Northern Pacific Enquiry.

New York, May 15.—To-day counsel for the Northern Pacific railway tried to find out from Edes to whom payments for the Chicago and Great Western, Bridgeport and South Chicago, and Chicago, Harlem and Batavia roads were made. Edes said on March 27, 1890, a check was drawn for $351,750, payable to the Chicago and Great Western company. Two notes for $575,000 each were paid by check for $1,174,916.67, made on June 2, 1890, signed by Edes and Colgate Hoyt. The Oregon Transcontinental company acted only as financial agents for the Wisconsin Central company, receiving a commission in cash and the bonds of the Northern Pacific company. Witness was cross-examined by ex-Senator Spooner re the Oregon Transcontinental company's bills, but nothing of importance was elicited.

Of the Three Great American Political Parties,

REPRESENTATIVE HUDSON OF KANSAS

Thinks the Populists Will Become Supreme—Queer Doings on the Cruiser Monterey—Changes in the Tariff—Military Aid for United States Marshals—The Nicaragua Affair Settled.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—Representative Hudson of Kansas in an interview to-day said the Populists were making a lively, pushing campaign of education among the people. He said the party would no doubt have the balance of power in the next house in which event he would not be likely on naming the speaker but in appointing Populist chairmen to important committees. The Populists, he said, would reduce the taxes on the necessaries of life to a minimum and supplement gold and silver with sufficient paper money to go around. The party, he declared, was growing stronger daily, and he predicted the election of a Populist president in 1896.

In the senate the tariff bill was taken up pending an amendment to make chloral hydrate 25 per cent. ad valorem. This was "agreed to," also the next item, chloroform, 2 cents a pound. The next item, coal tar, colors or dyes, was changed from 20 to 25 per cent ad valorem.

Secretary Lamont and General Schofield held a conference with the attorney-general to-day regarding the sending of troops to assist marshals in protecting railroad property in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming. After the conference the attorney-general said if U. S. marshals could not enforce the law, troops would be sent to their assistance. The United States minister at Nicaragua has received assurances that the government will punish the murderer of the American at Hama in March. The murderer is a native now under arrest.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—Among the serious charges Secretary Herbert is investigating on the coast defence ship Monterey at San Francisco is one relating to the virtual ruining of the hydraulic turrets which contain the big 12 inch rifles, the ship's main battery. It is understood that on a recent sea cruise of the ship, during practice firing of the guns, it was thought by the officer in charge that the hydraulic mechanism for checking the recoil needed modification, and one of the machinists was ordered to take out the plungers and reduce their diameter a quarter to half an inch. The plungers were reduced one quarter of an inch and when the guns were fired again the water naturally rushed past the plungers with very little resistance, and every pipe and joint connected with the apparatus burst, flooding the turret and necessitating repairs which will consume several weeks.

STRIKING AMERICAN MINERS.

The Situation at Scottdale—The Cleveland Men Determined.

Scottdale, Pa., May 15.—The coke strikers lost ground to-day. The Frick company have four plants in operation, and preparations are being made to start others. Last night workmen were brought here by rail and put to work in the mines. Some strikers returned to work at Moyer to-day.

Cleveland, O., May 15.—Representatives of the organized mine workers of America were astir early this morning in preparation for the meeting to-day. There is no evidence of weakening in their demands. They are determined to win.

Operators will be willing to advance the rate to the old scale, if Pennsylvania would agree. The miners absolutely refuse to consider the question of making of terms with any single section of the country. Representatives of 34 railroad and coal companies arrived here this morning for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the strike if possible.

CALIFORNIA'S METROPOLIS.

Arrest of Dr. Jennington—Nevada's Day—Los Angeles Enquiry.

San Francisco, May 15.—E. E. Parsons has secured a warrant for the arrest of Dr. William Jennington for stealing twenty bonds of the Lodi Electric Co., value $10,000, which Jennington obtained from Mrs. Parsons along with other books and papers belonging to the International Electric Supply and Construction Company, while Prsons was away from home. Parsons was one-third owner of the Eelectric Supply Co., while R. H. McDonald, jr., of the Pacific Bank, owned two-thirds. Jennington's arrest will be the fifth one in connection with the Pacific Bank and People's Bank frauds.

Despite assertions to the contrary, it may be authoritively stated that the investigation of the plates of the coast defence vessel Monterey is still going on. Photographs of the defective plates have been taken from the model of the vessel and mechanics who have been in the employ of the Carnegie Co. are in the city ready to point out places where the armor is faulty. While the Monterey is to be placed on the dry dock, ostensibly to have her bottom cleaned, those in a position to know say that the real object is to remove the plate on the port side forward of the monitor, which contains most of the defects.

This is the Nevada day at the exposition, and several thousand people who have come down form the "sage brush" state during the past few days to participate in the celebration of the day are on the grounds with thousands of others. Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning Governor Colcord, of Nevada, accompanied by ex-Governor Blaisdell, were escorted by the staff of Governor Markham from the Palace hotel to the Viennna Prater, where a bull's head breakfast was given by the society of Old Friends. A concert and reception, at which souvenirs of sage brush were given away, was followed by speeches.

The relatives of one of the passengers who was lost on the wreck of the steamer Los Angeles have waited on the United States district attorney and requested him to commence criminal proceedings against the captain and third officer. The district attorney is now investigating the case to determine whether or not the federal courts have jurisdiction.

Red Bluff, Cal., May 15.—Fire here this morning. Loss $7,000; insurance $200.

AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICERS.

Honors for the Chicago's Men—Tuaregs Again Fighting.

London, May 15.—By the capsizing of a boat containing a pleasure party on the river Orwell yesterday six people were drowned.

Lords Rosebery and Hamilton, Sir Charles Dilke and the Earl of Northbrook are among the guests to be present at the banquet to the officers of the cruiser Chicago. The Globe says the event will be a thoroughly national tribute, and adds: "No country in the world lies closer to our affections and sympathies than the United States."

Miss Frances Willard, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, is the guest of Lady Henry Somerset.

African advices say that in a recent battle between Tuaregs and Tibboo's men seventy of the latter were killed. The victors subsequently pillaged the town of Kawara.

Berlin, May 15.—At the international miners' congress to-day over a million miners were represented by German, English, French and Austrian delegates. The reports of the various nations represented were discussed.

Hong Kong, May 15.—The Empress of Japan arrived here this morning.

Paris, May 15.—Le Matin publishes an interview with Deputy Devillers, in which he expresses the opinion that France will annex Tunis and Madagascar.

LAWYERS' CHARGES.

O'Connor and Hogg of Ottawa Are Asked a Few Questions About Their Fees.

Andrew Onderdonk and Son Visit the Capital for Certain Interesting Reasons.

Ottawa, May 15.—At the public accounts committee to-day lawyer D. O'Connor, of Ottawa, was examined by Lister in regard to his legal charges. It was shown that in connection with the Hard Pan cases the firm of O'Connor & Hogg charged counsel fees for both when the record of the court showed that only one was present. O'Connor said that there was a taxing officer at the exchequer court, but he got his bills, by instructions of the government, taxed at the justice department. The fees of the firm in connection with the Quebec slide case were $2,412. There were three other lawyers on the case besides them. The inquiry was not concluded.

Andrew Onderdonk and his son Shirley, are here. Onderdonk built the British Columbia section of the C. P. R. The Chicago press says that Onderdonk is here with his son to get him away from an attachment he formed for a broken-down actress in Chicago, Baroness Blanc. Shirley's pa would not speak on the subject. The young man spoke affectionately of Baroness Blanc, but denied being married to her. Young Onderdonk was with F. Barnard, M.P., in the house last evening.

Bruneau in the house to-day charged Turcotte with being a government contractor, and not qualified to sit as a member. Sir John Thompson asked that the matter be allowed to stand over till Thursday. This was agreed to.

The Railway Investigation.

New York, May 15.—The Northern Pacific railroad investigation was continued to-day. Ex-Director Rossiter of the N. P. R. R., was called to the stand. He said he had purchased 400 trust certificates from the Rocky Fork Coal Co., for $20,000. N. P. officials had requested him to buy the stock. Villard especially urged him to purchase the stock. He could not remember from whom he bought it, but he made no money out of the transaction. The stock was secured merely to help the Northern Pacific to get control of the coal lands. Cross-examined, witness said Oakes knew nothing about the Rocky Fork transaction. Edes was then called to identify certain notes. The next witness was ex-Director Leland, of the N. P., but little information was derived from him.

SOMEWHAT CHAOTIC.

An Unpleasant Picture of Affairs in the Hawaiian Islands.

London, May 15.—A letter from Honolulu dated April 10th says: "Affairs on the islands are still in a terrible condition. It is difficult even to say what nationality is claimed by the provisional government or its principal supporters. One day they are enthusiastic Americans, indignantly repudiating the idea of American interference. Their organ habitually refers to Cleveland, Gresham, Blount and the minister resident in a style at least unusual when addressed to statesmen of a friendly power."

EDMUND'S FORECAST OF ITS FATE

How Sir William Harcourt Committed Himself—Misguided Stumpers of the Indian Peninsular—Threats of Another Mutiny—Col. Harfield's Invention—The Queen's Maids of Honor.

New York, May 15.—In his weekly cable despatch from London to the Tribune this morning, Edmund Yates says:

It is not to be supposed because the government has managed to survive by fourteen votes out of thirty-four on the second reading of the finance bill, that they have satisfied their followers. The registration bill will prove a fruitful source of discussion. Soon after the houses assemble again after Whitsuntide, if those who are eager for this cannot have their way the leaders will yield to popular opinion and issue a definite statement of their intentions. Sir William Harcourt has been going out of his way to let it be believed that he means to alter his position in the Rosebery ministry. He likes it so little that a fortnight ago he pointedly said in answer to a question in the house that he fervently hoped that it would not be in the position this time next year. On Thursday he repeated his hopes. His own words at the National Liberal club last Wednesday show that he does mean to retire from political life. Everything points, however, to the fact that he will not control the national finances when next year's budget comes up. If it happens that the Liberal government is then in power, Henry Fowler will probably be found by then to have taken his place. With threats of another Indian mutiny hanging over us, absurd (as they probably prove to be), it is surely ill-advised for Anglo-Indians to stump the country in behalf of more sympathetic treatment of the native population. But Sir Wm. Wedderby has determined to stump the country in behalf of the down-trodden native. One hundred and thirty members of parliament, mostly Irish, have promised to help.

The admiralty have at length signed, sealed and delivered an agreement with Col. Harfield adopting his terms of royalty for the manufacture of his patent compensating steering gear in the royal dock yards, and its adoption generally throughout the fleet.

The Queen leaves Windsor next Monday for Manchester, proceeding thence to Balmoral, where she will arrive on Tuesday morning. Her Majesty will stay in Scotland five weeks. The court will then return to Windsor for a residence of three weeks before going to Osborne for the summer. The Queen has been looking out for two maids of honor to replace Miss Rosa Hood and Miss Mary Hughes, both of whom are going to be married. Miss Judith Harbord, daughter of Lord Suffield, and Miss Byng, daughter of Col. Byng, have been appointed. A maid of honor has three months of waiting each year and a salary of £300. There are eight of them and two are usually in attendance at court.

The Duchess of Roxburgh was anxious to bring out her eldest daughter, Lady Margaret Ines Ker, this season, but did not wish to go to the drawing room, being still in mourning for her husband, so the Queen allowed her the privilege, which is very seldom granted, of private presentation, which took place at Windsor Castle last week.

The personal belongings of the German emperor and empress were removed the other day from the schloss in Berlin to Potsdam in twenty immense covered wagons. There were many articles of furniture, a quantity of valuable china, the wardrobes of their majesties, long tables which are used for state banquets and luncheons and various services of gold and silver plates, which are packed in huge safes. The emperor has a travelling canteen of plate, china and glass for visits to hunting lodges and watering places, and for the residence of the court, and there is also a travelling staff of imperial servants who go about just as their services may happen to be required. The Queen has a similar arrangement.

epine of Belgium on May 28th is to be officially quiet, and the Belgian court only goes out of mourning a week previously; it is to be marked by two some what imposing demonstrations. On the previous day an allegorical floral pageant is to parade the principal boulevardes of Brussels. A superb album containing sketches, poetry and music bound in carved ivory and silver, is also to be presented to the bride by a deputation of fifty Belgian painters, authors and composers, who are to be escorted to Flanders palace by a procession in which most of the artistic associations in the Belgian capital will be represented.

The old comrades and friends of the Royal Military College of Canada have just placed in the south transept of Rochester cathedral a handsome memorial to three officers of the Royal Engineers who were graduated at the college, namely, Captain W. G. Stairs, Captain H. B. MacKay and Captain W. H. Robinson. The first two officers died of fever in Africa and Captain Robinson was killed in action near Sierra Leone in March, 1892. The college at Kingston has given to the army some excellent soldiers.

Effects of the Coal Strike.

Watertown, N. Y., May 15.—The big strike in the coal fields of Pennsylvania has caused much embarrassment to eastern railroads, and threatens to seriously cripple the operations. Some trains have already been withdrawn and workmen laid off. The New York Central has scarcely enough to supply its engines for four days.

GENERAL DISPATCHES.

News in Brief From Various Parts of the World.

Paris, May 14.—Simon Pourbemire, the anarchist who was arrested on suspicion of having caused the Avenue Kleber explosion, has proved an alibi. Nevertheless, as an ardent revolutionist, he will be prosecuted under the new law against chronic evildoers.

Rome, May 14.—The government has decided to end this week the state of siege proclaimed at the beginning of the anarchist outbreak at Massa and Carrara. In Sicily the state of siege will be ended immediately after the close of Deputy de Felice's trial.

London, May 14.—Capetown will send Sir John de Villiers, chief justice, and Sir Charles Mills, agent general in London, as delegates to the conference which will be held in Ottawa to arrange for closer trade relations between the British colonies. Sir John de Villiers will sail to-morrow.

Berlin, May 14.—The Sydney correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung says that on March 3 and 4 a severe earthquake shook Mioka in the Bismarck archipelago. Nearly all the dwellings were levelled to the ground. The missionaries and traders suffered heavy losses and were exposed to great danger in the ruins of the buildings.

Paris, May 14.—In speaking of the Lyons exhibition to-day, M. Raynal, minister of the interior, said that although [illegible] abandoned in [illegible] Fresnes jail fetters was likely to prove that its supporters were right and properly understood the country's interests.

Berlin, May 14.—The international congress was opened here this morning with an attendance of ninety delegates. The socialistic element largely predominated. The principal subject of discussion by the convention is that of the establishment of a legal working day of eight hours.

Buda Pesth, May 14.—Baron Vay, president of the house of magnates, died this morning. He was 93 years of age.

London, May 14.—The executive committee of the National Liberal Federation has issued a call for a conference to be held at Leeds on June 20, for the purpose of formulating a plan of campaign against the house of lords. The circular calling for the conference declares that the upper house of parliament is a standing menace to the liberties of the people, and it is necessary to practically determine how that obstacle can be surmounted or removed.

Dublin, May 14.—A Catholic mob attacked an Orangemen's funeral procession yesterday afternoon in Portadown-on-the-Bann. The Orangemen fought back. Revolvers and clubs were used on both sides, and before the police arrived one man was shot dead and several severely injured. The police separated them and arrested fourteen men who were in the thick of the fight, and were retiring with their prisoners when the mob turned on them and tried to rescue the men under arrest. The police charged and the mob fired their revolvers at them. More police arrived and they arrested more rioters and the mob was then dispersed.

Hamburg, May 14.—Prince Bismarck's sciatica has grown worse and his walks in the park have been stopped by the doctor. He has been obliged to decline to receive the Hungarian and Westphalian delegations at Friedrichsruhe, and his journey to Varzin has been postponed.

Rome, May 14.—The debate in the chamber of deputies this morning was exceedingly stormy. The opposition reiterated all their objections to the war budget and insisted that several items should have been cut down. General Mocenni spoke repeatedly to refute the arguments against the budget. On the vote the government got only nine majority, and the opposition set up a hideous din of jubilation. The situation is extremely complicated, if not critical. The popular hostility to the military expenditure is very strong, and the opposition leaders are making the most of it without respect to consequences. The semi-official papers hint that a dissolution is likely. After the vote the chamber was found to have been without a quorum. The vote therefore was nullified and the whole question will be debated again to-morrow.

Beavers in the Adirondacks.

Malone, N. Y., May 14.—It has been supposed that the beavers were long ago extinct in the Adirondacks, but fresh work by them has been found on the outlet of Lake Meacham, 25 miles south of this town. This discovery has attracted a good deal of attention from the guides and hunters. Beavers feed on the bark of the birch, willow, alder and poplar, and it is their habit to lay by stores of food in the summer. Guides who were fishing on Meacham outlet found sticks of poplar of varying lengths and diameter, from half an inch to an inch long cut almost as neatly at each end as the work could have been done with a knife. It was unmistakably the work of beavers. It would add largely to the charms of the Adirondacks if beavers were again to establish themselves there and erect their strange habitations. The game laws now forbid the trapping and killing of these animals at any time of the year.

Flooded With Spurious Stamps.

City of Mexico, May 15.—There is much excitement in government circles over the discovery of the circulation of half a million dollars' worth of counterfeit stamps of the 50 cents denomination. The larger cities of Mexico have been flooded with these stamps, and the authorities have not as yet been successful in discovering the source of the gigantic fraud.

Killed by a Flash.

Baltimore, May 12.—Mrs. Mary A. Sterner, the elderly woman who lost her sight last week from the flash of a trolley wire, was stricken with paralysis yesterday and died within two hours. Just before she was stricken she regained her sight. Her son was pouring medicine into a glass for her at the time and the joyfully announced that she could see. Half an hour later her entire left side was paralyzed, and she again became blind. Within two hours she died. Her physicians say that the paralytic stroke was directly caused by the flash that blinded her.

LIFE IN BOLIVIA.

Inducements Offered to Capitalists to Invest in That Country.

Bath, N. Y., May 14.—A letter received by his brother confirms the report that came in a vague way from Bolivia two weeks ago that William Prince of the town of Catharine was murdered and robbed in an isolated part of Bolivia, where he was extensively engaged in mining. Prince was an expert mining engineer and went to Bolivia in the employ of a syndicate of Englishmen to develop gold mines on their properties. The company failed and Prince bought a claim of his own and remained in that country. He wrote regularly to his relatives in Catherine and Havanna, Schuyler county, until last January. Then he wrote acknowledging the receipt of several thousand dollars which had been forwarded him in the case of the United States counsel, the money being his share of his father's estate. In that letter he stated that he had made a large fortune from his mines and intended to return home as soon as he could arrange his business.

That was the last heard of him until two weeks ago, when his family received a copy of a Baltimore paper containing a letter from Bolivia which said that a rich mining operator named W. Prince of New York state had been found dead at the foot of a precipice, the surroundings indicating that he had been hurled from the ledge after a severe struggle. A few days ago the letter from Mount Pleasant, addressed to Prince's brother, was received. It was written by a miner, who said that he worked a mine 50 miles from Prince's mine, that being the nearest claim to his.

Prince lived alone at his mine, his employees all being natives of the region. He was very hospitable and his house was a frequent stopping place for travellers. On the night of February 26th, a man who had often stopped at Prince's, appeared at the place accompanied by a stranger. The next day Prince did not visit his works which was so unusual that during the day the natives went to his house to ascertain what kept him home. He was found dead in his bed with his head beaten into a shapeless mass. The house had been ransacked and as no valuables or money could be found by the natives, and as Prince was understood to have a large sum in the house and known to be in possession of valuable jewelry, it was believed the two guests had murdered and robbed the mine owner of all his moveable belongings. The writer said he had reported the affair to the U. S. consul, who was making an investigation.

COAL MEN'S CONFERENCE.

Vast Interests Involved in the Meeting This Morning.

Cleveland, O., May 15.—Millions of dollars are involved in the outcome of the conference between the striking miners represented and the operator that opened here this morning. It is not a matter in which the miners and operators are solely interested. Another month of idleness and the bituminous coal conflict affected will work incalculable injury to no small part of the country. A famine is imminent, even if it has not already arrived, and thousands if not tens of thousands of industrial establishments employing in the aggregate an army of labor will be compelled to suspend operations. Thus tens of thousands of wage earners who are not interested directly or indirectly in the miners' troubles will be made innocent victims of the determination of the trades organizations, or the equally strong determination of the mine owners.

As a sample, dispatches from Chicago and many of the leading towns in Illinois say that the stocks of bituminous coal are almost exhausted, and that a few days more will witness the shutting down of manufacturing establishments almost without number, of gas and electric light plants, of water-works, the stoppage of elevators in big commercial and residence buildings. These are but a few of the evils or inconveniences that will follow in the train of a failure of to-day's conference.

Every mine affected by the strike is represented in the the conference to-day, both by miners and operators. The conference opened at two o'clock. Its purpose, as indicated by the call, is to take such action as may be deemed wise to bring about an adjustment of the differences that exist between the operators and the miners in every state affected. The call is signed by John McBride, as president, and Patrick McBryde, as secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, and for the operators by W. H. Malcomb, president of the White Block Coal Co., of Chicago; J. A. Smith Tally, of Terre Haute; J. S. Martin, of Columbus, O., and F. L. Robbins, of Pittsburgh.

The conference is held under the rules of the old inter-state conventions, which gives the miners and operators of each district four votes each. The miners are opposed to any compromise, while the operators favor the inter-state rate, which runs from 60 to 65 cents in Illinois and Indiana to 79 cents in Pittsburgh.

This is the first national strike among the miners in twenty years, and if they succeed in having the inter-state agreement adopted it will be their greatest victory. President McBride says that if they are compelled to accept a compromise they will strike again at the first opportunity. The operators will make a strong effort to bring about a uniformity of wages, which will be of as much advantage to them as to the men. They are sanguine that the conference will end the strike.

DON SEBASTIAN'S JEWELS.

An Interesting Law Suit Involving the Royal Family of Spain.

New York, May 14.—A letter to the Recorder from Madrid dated May 3, says a great scandal is on the tapis at Madrid in connection with the magnificent jewels which were formerly the property of the one-eyed prince Don Sebastian, famed as the ugliest and most erudite royal personage in Europe. At his death they came into the possession of his eldest son, the Duke of Dureal, whether by testamentary bequest or by gift of his mother, the half-witted widow, Dona Christiana, is not known.

Duke Dureal, who will be remembered in the United States in connection with his collection of spurious old masters which he foisted upon the public there, seemed to have pawned these jewels at the Monte da Piete when he was over taken by financial distress, owing to his insane extravagance. He died suddenly and mysteriously at a time when warrants were issued for his arrest on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences, etc., and his lovely young widow, a lady of plebeian birth, finding herself and children utterly without resources and evicted from her apartments at Paris for non-payment of rent, sold the pawn tickets for a trifle to a Hebrew banker, Cohen. The banker in turn sold either the tickets or the jewels to the enormously wealthy Count Salamanca, and inasmuch as the latter refuses to surrender them to the royal family, who claim them as crown property, a law suit has been commenced which promises to bring once more before the public eye all the disgraceful passages in the career of the late Duke of Dureal, who was one of the blackest sheep of the Spanish branch of the house of Bourbon.

Salvation Army Congress.

New York, May 15.—The large auditorium of the Church of the Strangers on Mercer street was packed to the doors at noon to-day when the May congress for the Atlantic states of the Salvation Army was called to order. The gathering fully bore out the previous statements of the executive officers that it would be the largest ever held in this city. Commander Ballington Booth and Mrs. Booth welcomed the delegates, and a service of prayer and praise was inaugurated. An immense torchlight procession takes place at 6 o'clock.

The Inevitable Book.

New York, May 14.—Miss Madeline Pollard, accompanied by Miss Jennie Burk, arrived in this city from Washington yesterday afternoon, and about 2 o'clock engaged a suite of rooms at the Marlborough hotel. To a reporter Miss Burke said that Miss Pollard had come to her publishers about a book she had written, a kind of autobiography. Miss Burke declined to talk further about that book, except to say that it was all ready for publication. Miss Pollard and Miss Burke left the hotel as soon as they learned that Miss Pollard's presence there was known.

DIVORCE DINNERS.

A New and Remarkable Social Function in Paris.

Divorce dinners, about which the French press are now writing in an amusing vein, have not yet made their way to New York, but it is not by any means impossible that they will some day become a part of the regular social curriculum. At a large dinner given not long ago, one or two of the old-fashioned guests were horrified to observe that four people who had been recently divorced, and two of whom had married again, were all present at the table. Two of them had joined hands again, and were the least concerned at the table, though the wife saw her former husband across the way, and the husband was only three seats removed from his former wife. Such a condition of things would have been startling twenty years ago, but it passed as of no particular consequence on this occasion.

In Paris they have made the divorce dinner a dignified and appropriate celebration. The guests are invited to meet the lady in the case at a small dinner which is to celebrate her deliverance from her monster of a husband. Sometimes the dinner also means that the gentleman whom she is about to marry will also be on hand to make the acquaintance of her friends. The divorced husband is hauled over the coals, and everything explained fully from the divorced woman's standpoint, and, in the language of the gambler, "there is a fresh deal," and everything moves ahead. Meanwhile the husband is very likely entertaining some family sympathizers at a small banquet. There is a tendancy to gay this method of viewing divorce outside of France, but the position taken there is that when a divorce is granted two imprisoned souls are liberated, and a dinner always marks an occasion of that character among the French.—New York Sun.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

Growing Popularity of the Movement in England.

Claude Meeker United States consul at Bradford, England, has contributed an interesting chapter to the history of labor legislation in a report to the department of state upon experiments with the eight hour system by English employers of labor. He says that though attempted legislation in that direction has been several times defeated, the fight is to be renewed and the eight hour bill will soon be before parliament. The navy and war departments are now experimenting with the system and other branches of the government service will soon try it. It is fast achieving public popularity, and in Bradford a majority of the corporation employes, including the police, are working eight hours daily. An important test was made by the Salford Iron Works, near Manchester, where the system was tried for one year without solicitation either by employes or trades unions, at the firm's own risk, to prove how far the widespread desire for shorter hours of work might be met without injury to the mechanical trades and to ascertain whether it might be resisted in the interests of all concerned.

The full complement of men is 1200 and the wages paid for forty-eight hours were the same as paid for fifty-three hours under the old system. About one dozen trades were represented. The trial was in a year of exceeding depression, when the prices obtained for the output were the lowest on record, but the increase value of the goods produced compared to the average rate of value of the six preceding years. This was regarded as an unfavorable condition for the test. One-third of the men employed were on piece-work wages, and that system received a thorough trial, as well as the weekly wage system. The production during the trial year was actually greater, but the "turn over" on account of cheap prices was somewhat less.

This resulted in showing an increase of four-hundredths of one per cent. in labor cost, but it was a remarkable fact that the economy in shorter hours for burning gas and fuel, for wear and tear of tools, machinery, etc., amounted to a saving of four-hundredths of one per cent., thus exactly equalising the increase of labor cost. In the fifty-three and fifty-four hours' work (the old system), the lost time mounted to 2.46 per cent., while in the forty-eight hours it amounted to but .46. The result on piece-work was looked forward to with interest, and the wages realized were 1.41 per cent. less than the standard. The figures in this manner showed a steady adaptation to the altered conditions and made it evident that as the work proceeded the difference would entirely disappear. The piece work rates were not advanced in the year.

The superintendent urged the adoption of the system by the government, holding that the men have a better home life by striking off the two hours before breakfast. He says: "One year's trial has convinced me that we have found a happy medium in the number of hours, during which only one meal and one stoppage was needed, and this resolved itself into the eight-hour day." The foremen's reports show that the men were more steady at work, more cheerful and less given to inebriety under the eight-hour system. The moral tone was also improved and all seemed brighter and more cheerful.

Another important test was made by the Sheffield Smelting Company. It was found that the cost of wages for both the ton of material smelted and the ounce of bullion produced was slightly less under the new scheme. The men had been fresher and brighter, showed an increased cheerfulness and interest, as manifested in both the quantity and quality of their work.

THE OLDEST LITERATURE.

Extraordinary Array of Documents on Papyrus and Parchment.

Mr. Theodore Graf of Vienna exhibited here this winter his remarkable collection of Egyptian portraits. He has lately opened in Vienna the wonderful wealth of papyrus manuscripts which he brought from Egypt and sold to the Archduke Rainier, a liberal patron of art and archeology. It is admirably exhibited in the Austrian Museum, and the catalogue, by Prof. Karabacek, the director, gives a capital summary of the contents. It is an extraordinary array of original documents on papyrus, paper and parchment, rescued from the ruins of El Fayum, Hermopolis and Ichmin, covering a period of 2700 years, from the 14th century before to the 14th century after Christ. Learned men have deciphered these imperishable records and given the world a better knowledge of the daily life of this distant period than it ever had before. In a case as arranged the writing material in use 1200 years before the Christian era, with the date accidentally preserved.

There are mummy tablets of wood, with Greek inscriptions, recording tax receipts in the time of the Ptolemys, and stenographic data on wax tablets. There are official records, duly signed, on papyrus [illegible] stamps like those used to-day for revenue taxes on tobacco, etc. There is a stamped tax receipt of the reign of Emperor Trajan, in Greek, for it was the official language when Rome governed Egypt. Of thousands of documents thus rescued only 50 are Latin, but one of these is the oldest Latin manuscript in existence. The oldest documents are in the earliest languages of Egypt—hieratic and demotic—one a poetical description of the city of Pi-Rameses, of the 12th century before Christ—the other the book of the dead on two rolls of papyrus.

The papyrus museum reveals the daily life of the Greek and Roman period of Egypt, curiously like that of our own time, as, for instance, the returns of a census taken in the year 175 after Christ. Then there are medical receipts, wills, notices of death, tax duplicates and receipts, lists of the city councils of Hermopolis, with very much such questions and debates as those nowadays reported in our own newspapers. There is a book of the daily expenses of a family, showing that the doctor was paid for his attendance in wine, and that the tutor and the coachman got the same wages. A soldier gives his receipt for money borrowed; a school boy's exercise shows that the teachers of that day were as careful as our own; a tax collector sends a bill for feeding the holy crocodiles. Then came the period of the Arabian supremacy. One set of documents relates to a marriage—quite as expensive a luxury then as it is now—with a list of the bride's trousseau and the gifts sent to her; a lover writes to his sweetheart and sends her a carier pigeon for her use in answering him; a suit for divorce; a bill for ladies' dresses, all are here preserved.

Later on there are letters, etc., on paper, showing both the public and the private life of Egypt. On the walls of the museum are hung some of the Greek portraits found in Egypt, part of the collection exhibited here by Mr. Graf, who has found a purchaser in the Austrian archduke, and through his public spirit has given to the residents and visitors in Vienna the opportunity of thus seeing revealed the culture and life of Egypt in the long vanished past. Modern learning has revealed to the world the secrets hitherto hidden in these curious relics of a lost civilization, and Graf's energy in discovering and preserving the treasures has inspired the students who have unlocked the mysteries of the strange tongues in which these papyrus manuscripts are written. Such a collection, unrivalled in its antiquity and its interest, may well encourage all ang archeologists to persevere in gathering together the material that embodies the world's history from its earliest years.

ONE STREAK OF LUCK.

A Millionaire's Story of a Pivotal Experience.

"What is the luckiest thing that ever happened to you?" a Herald man asked of a New York millionaire.

"Do you mean sheer, unadulterated luck—something that just happens without any seeking on your part?" replied the millionaire.

"Yes, I mean just that."

"I am generally counted a very lucky man by the thousand and one people who know more about me than I do myself. But, on my honor, what I call a genuine piece of good luck happened to me only once in my life. It didn't amount to much, though it meant much to me at the time. It was when I was filling my first job—that of an errand boy at $3 a week—and I tell you I have never since felt so rich as when I carried home my first three dollars. I had been given a check to cash and a bill to pay. After paying the bill I had $37 of my employer's money left. I had just crossed Broadway when, happening to look back, I saw two men fighting in the street. I was enough of a boy then to take a keen interest in anything like a scrap. I retraced my steps to see what it was all about. To my amazement and surprise I discovered that the two men were fighting about the $37 and the receipted bill, which in some mysterious fashion had dropped out of my pocket. A policeman happening along at that moment I was able to prove that I had a better right to the property in dispute than either of the combatants, and recovered it forthwith. They had each grabbed for it at the same time, and each was bound to get all or none—luckily for me. I have often speculated on what might have happened if they hadn't quarrelled. I should never have recovered the money, and, in consequence, I should certainly have lost my situation. That might have changed the whole current of my career, and instead of being a rich man, I might to-day have been a poor devil, or I might have been twice as rich as I am. Who knows? Anyway, I regard it as the only piece of downright simon pure, unmistakable good luck that ever befell me. But say Tom, Dick or Harry that you chance to meet will be able to tell you lots of luckier things than have happened to me. Some of them things that I had worked at for years."

THE ARMADILLO.

An Eccentric Little Animal Who Is a Great Forager.

The armadillo, as eccentric in his habits as in his appearance, does the duty of the domestic cat among the field mice in South America, which are terribly destructive. Voracious in his appetite, he is sedentary by inclination, but he finds his game with very little trouble. Mice are always more or less abundant, though periodically and almost punctually, their numbers decline, but in certain years they positively swarm.

Then the dogs subsist on them; they fatten the poultry, and great flights of fowls of the air are perpetually on the hover over the breeding grounds. As for the armadillo, he does his work methodically, quartering the plain like a well bred beagle, and sniffing the earth with perpetual acuteness. When his nose tells him that a mouse is near he creeps up stealthily towards the spot; then, slowly dragging himself up and making his spring, he traps the mouse, or whole family of mice, beneath his body.

But he does not confine himself to a mouse and insect diet, and in attacking the snake he uses his impenetrable body [illegible] A friend of Mr. Hudson witnessed one of these encounters. The armadillo rushed upon a snake which vainly sought to escape and rocked himself to and fro on the body until the victim was cut into sections under the sharp edges of the armadillo's bony covering. Should animal food fail him, the armadillo falls back upon vegetables, so that it need never take more than indispensable exercise and can always keep himself in comfortable condition. Another inveterate enemy of the snakes is the congener, the iguana, or great tree lizard, of which Mr. Hudson tells a comical story, related to him by a Gaucho friend who was riding carlessly along, letting one end of his lasso trail behind.

He noticed a large iguana lying apparently asleep in the sun, and though he rode by it very closely it did not stir; but no sooner had he passed it than it raised its head and fixed its attention on the forty feet of lasso trailing slowly by. Suddenly it dashed upon the rope and dealt it a succession of violent blows with its tail. When the whole of the lasso, several yards of which had been pounded in vain, had been dragged by, the lizard, with uplifted head, continued [illegible] with the greatest astonishment. Never had such a wonderful snake crossed its path before.—Edinburgh Review.

If ever a man feels like "a poor worm of the dust," it is when he suffers from that tired feeling. Ayer's Sarsaparilla removes this discouraging physical condition and imparts the thrill of new life and energy to every nerve, tissue, muscle, and fibre of the whole body.

THE SERPENT'S POWERS.

Effect of the Steady Gaze on the Human Nerves.

The power of continuing motionless, with the lifted head projecting forward, for an indefinite time, is one of the most wonderful of the serpent's muscular feats, and is of the highest importance to the animal both when fascinating its victim and when mimicking some inanimate object, as for instance the stem and bud of an aquatic plant; here it is only referred to on account of the effect it produces on the human mind, as enchanting the serpent's strangeness. In this attitude, with the round, unwinking eyes fixed on the beholder's face, the effect may be very curious and uncanny.

Ernest Glanville, a south African writer, thus describes his own experience. When a boy he frequently went out into the bush in quest of game, and on one of these solitary excursions he sat down to rest in the shade of a willow on the bank of a shallow stream. Sitting there, with his cheek resting on his hand, he fell into a boyish reverie. After some time he became aware in a vague way that on the white, sandy bottom of the stream there was stretched out a long black line which had not been there at first. He continued for some time regarding it without recognizing what it was; but all at once, with an inward shock, became fully conscious that he was looking at a large snake.

"Presently, without apparent motion, so softly and silently was it done, the snake reared its head above the surface and, I felt, there were two cold, black gleaming eyes fixed on me in question of what I was. It flashed upon me then that it would be a good opportunity to test the power of the human eye upon a snake, and I set myself the task of looking it down. It was a foolish effort. The bronze head and sinewy neck, about which the water flowed without a ripple, were as if carved in stone, and the cruel, unwinking eyes, with the light coming and going in them, appeared to glow the brighter the longer I looked. Gradually there came over me a sensation of sickening fear, which, if I had yielded to it, would have left me powerless to move; and with a cry I leaped up, and seizing a fallen willow branch, attacked the reptile with a species of fury. * * * Probably the idea of the Incanti originated in a similar experience of some native."

The Incanti, it must be explained, is a powerful and malignant being that takes the form of a great serpent, and lies at night in some deep, dark pool; and should a man incautiously approach and look down into the water he would be held there by the power of the great gleaming eyes, and finally drawn down against his will, powerless and speechless, to disappear forever in the dark depths.—The Fortnightly Review.

THE HUMAN LUNGS.

Six Hundred Million Air Cells Purifying the Blood.

Boston Traveller: The importance of the lungs as a means of purification of the blood and of promoting the general welfare of the human organism may be inferred from their protection, so nearly surrounded by strong bony structures. The same may be inferred from their constant action, without a minute's vacation, ordinarily, at any one time, from the dawn of life till its close.

Nor are these five lobe servants, in their general capacity, controlled by mental influences—will power—but continue their activity whether we are awake or asleep, whether we are sensible or insensible—managing their own affairs. Their appropriate mission is the supplying of pure air to the system, the most important design of which is the purification, carrying off particles of impure and dead matter, which are ever accumulating as the result of age and the exercise of the organic function.

To effect this very important result, this purification of a body constantly becoming impure, of necessity, there are six hundred million (by estimate) of air cells all of these being more or less inflated by each breath. As small as these must be it is estimated that the outer surface has an average of five minute blood vessels, containing the blood from the general system sent there for revitalizing, that it may continue to sustain and care for the body.

The theory is that the iron in the blood attracts the oxygen of the breath through the membranes, resulting in an actual combustion, burning waste matters, and, in this way, sustaining the warmth of the body, our clothing doing nothing in this regard beyond regulating the escape of the heat thus produced, and preventing the natural ingress of the cold from without. After the burning of these refuse matters by which a deadly gas is produced, as in all combustion, which, with what we may call ashes, are drawn through these membranes, entering the air cells, soon to be thrown out by the expired breath, as this gas is particularly poisonous to the lungs.

That such impurities may not be rebreathed they ascend, being lighter than the cool air, till the poisonous gas becomes cool, when it sinks to the surface of the earth, where it is absorbed as one of the most important of the fertilizers, vegetation being sustained more in its work of purifying the air than by the soil. The average capacity of the lungs of a full sized man is about one gallon, though only about one-half of the air is thrown out at any one time, the rest remaining aiding in the purification of the body.

It is estimated that the lungs are supplied annually with one hundred thousand cubic feet of air, breathing seven million times, purifying 3500 tons of blood. In view of such a stupendous amount of toil performed by the lungs, with the importance of this purification of the body, without which health and life can be continued but a short time, it is of the utmost importance that we have a generous supply of pure air, while the natural supply would be sufficient, probably, if the population of the earth should be increased a hundred-fold, particularly since the vegetable world is constantly employed in its purification. We have simply to open our doors and windows, freely breathing our part, in doing which we shall not rob our delighbors.

QUEER TARIFF REFORM.

During the progress of the tariff bill through committee the Dominion ministers have pretty well exposed the hollowness of their pretensions as tariff reformers. On article after article the duty has been raised from the figure at which it was fixed in the original schedule, in many cases to a higher point than that in the old tariff. At one sitting Mr. Foster moved to make cold rolled iron and steel bars dutiable at the old rate of one-sixth of a cent per pound, instead of five per cent. as at first proposed, and also to make the duty upon wire nails one cent per pound instead of three-fourths of a cent as in the resolutions. He admitted that the duty was equal to 66 per cent. Messrs. Davies and Laurier pointed out that the government were going back upon all their tariff reform proposals. Then Mr. Foster moved that brass and copper nails be 35 per cent. instead of 25 per cent., as at first proposed; that the duty on enamelled iron and steelware be restored to the old rate of 35 per cent., and that copper wire be 15 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. The duty on axles, springs, etc., was changed back from 35 per cent. to one cent per pound and 20 per cent.—the old rate. The opposition strongly objected to the cotton duties, which are in many cases prohibitory, but of course there was no change made.

At another sitting the opposition entered an objection to the high duty on velveteens. They pointed out that while the duty on silk velvets used by the rich were being reduced, the duty on cotton velveteens used by the poorer classes were being increased. The duty on cotton sewing thread in hanks was made dutiable at the old rate of 12 1-2 per cent., while spool thread was left at 25 per cent., to assist a Toronto establishment engaged in winding threads on spools. Then came one of the few concessions made to the consumer. After a vigorous protest Mr. Foster consented to reduce the 30 per cent. duty on cordage to the old tariff rate of 10 per cent. and a quarter of a cent per pound. This takes off the additional "protection" proposed for the corage combine. The Liberals then attacked the 12 1-2 per cent. duty on binding twine, but in this matter the government stood firm in defence of its friends. A significant incident is thus related:

When the paragraphs relating to dress goods, carpets, etc., were reached, Mr. Maclean, of York (Con.), urged that they be not disposed of, as he desired to move that specific duties on such articles be restored. The opposition objected to the government supporters delaying the passage of the tariff resolutions and perpetuating business uncertainty, but the ministers agreed to Mr. Maclean's request.

Mr. Maclean, it may be remembered, is the gentleman who said the government was foolish to pay any attention to the demand for tariff reform. Wood pulp was taken from the free list and the old tariff of 25 per cent. restored. Emery wheels were similarly dealt with because it was found that one small concern in some corner of the country was engaged in their manufacture. Cases for jewelry, watches, cutlery, etc., are to be dutiable at 5 cents each and 30 per cent. ad valorem, instead of 35 per cent. ad valorem, as proposed in the new tariff. Under the old tariff they were taxed 10 cents each and 30 per cent. Wire cloth, chrome steel and other articles were likewise put up a notch. Now Mr. Foster has given notice that he will propose a substitution of 35 per cent. for the duty of $5 each and 20 per cent. on buggies and pleasure carts valued under $50, a slight increase. There is also to be an increase in the duty on axes, adzes and edged tools and on upper leather of all kinds.

The sum of the whole matter is that to a large number of duties increases have been made in committee, while only two decreases of any note have been effected, namely, in coal oil and cordage. The protection on coal oil is still about 150 per cent., which may surely be reckoned quite heavy enough. Who will say after this record that the government's profession of readiness to reform the tariff was anything but a hollow mockery? There will be no real tariff reform until there is a change of administration.

POLITICAL NOTES.

General Herbert seems to have stirred up quite a fuss by his complimentary reference to the Papal Zouaves in an address to a French volunteer battalion in Montreal, and the matter has been deemed by some fussy member of importance enough to be brought up in the house at Ottawa. The Montreal Witness gives the following translation of General Herbert's remarks:

I am happy to meet you, because you recall to my mind the finest pages of Canadian history. I fancy I find in you the descendants of those heroes who fought under the command of Général de Montcalm, of Chevalier de Lévis and of the Marquis de Vaudreuil. Never forget that you belong to the same race as those of your valiant compatriots who formed part of the Papal Zouaves regiment, those crusaders of the nineteenth century (sic). That noble regiment rendered itself famous by defending the church at Castelfedardo, at Mentona, at Monte Libretti, at Monte Roland, etc., and under the very walls of Rome, the Eternal City. You see, then, that good examples come to you from all sides.

Your fathers rendered themselves glorious under those famous chieftains. "Good blood cannot lie." You are on this continent the guardians of old French valor. A legend holds that, in days gone by, French soldiers used to show their troops a redoubt and tell them, "Here is a fort to be taken." "It is to be taken," the soldiers would reply, "well, then, we shall take it." And they invariably took it, as they said they would.

You see now those handsome silver cups, due to the munificence of our distinguished fellow citizen, Sir Donald A. Smith; you have missed them this year, but they still remain to be taken. Well, then, take them next year!"

The New York Sun recently had an article on Canadian affairs, stating in effect that the Liberal policy of tariff reform would do nothing to bring about reciprocity with the United States, and winding up with the stereotyped declaration that Canada's only way to get reciprocity is to join the States politically. Quotations from the article have of course gone the whole round of the Canadian Conservative press, concluding with the Colonist. It is no way surprising to find papers like the New York Sun and the San Francisco Call preaching the doctrine that reciprocity can only be obtained through political union with the States, since these papers are most earnest advocates of annexation; but we do wonder at any Canadian being fool enough to accept their opinions as the unalterable view of the whole nation.

HE HEEDED NOT.

Master of American Schooner Helen Disregards the Hyacinth's Warning.

There is a very strong probability of there being at least one seizure for illegal sealing this year. The master of the American schooner Helen spoken and boarded by H. M. S. Hyacinth, Captain May, just before the Victoria schooner Triumph was ordered home, refused absolutely to pay any attention to the notice. Captain May served a formal written notice of warning on him, but was laughed at by the indiscreet American. The latter said he did not recognize his authority in any way and frankly said he would disregard the warning entirely. His sealing boats were at work all around him and he did not even call them in, but went right on with his work. He announced his intention of keeping on until stopped by an American ship. The meeting occurred very near to 57.45 north latitude 139 west longitude, where the Triumph was spoken. The place is in what is called Fairweather grounds and is off Cross Sound. The Hyacinth will unquestionably seize the Helen if she again catches her sealing. The Pheasant will very likely do the same, as will any of the American patrol fleet should they meet. The latter will probably institute a little search for the Helen.

The master of the latter ship was unwise in taking the course which he did, as according to the letter of the law his vessel was liable to seizure. The Victoria schooners have many times been boarded by American officers, and the crews have chafed under the thing, but under the joint arrangement now in effect it would be unworkable to police British boats with British warships only, and American schooners the same. It is believed by many here that Captain May should have seized the schooner on the spot. It is quite likely she will be in either Sitka or Port Townsend in a few weeks to report to the collector, and manned by a crew of man-of-warsmen,

BAFFLED BURGLARS.

Green Hands Tackle a Contract Beyond Their Capacity.

A most daring attempt to break into Steele's saloon and restaurant was made during the silent watches of last night. The burglars were evidently novices of the freshest kind, for they not only made an awful and inartistic mess of a very useful door, but they lamentably failed to get even so much as a smell of the luscious (or lushous) contents of the saloon. The amateur Jack Sheppards brought along an auger or a brace with a large sized bitt, and before proceeding to dissect the door they had a rehearsal on the fence. The man with the brace did not know which way to turn it, as the marks on the fence show, but he finally "caught on" to the hang of the thing and scooped in inch or so out of the plank. Then the gang bored five big ugly holes in the side door, pulled back the bolt, but were baffled by the lock, which they had not ingenuity enough to pick. Next they tried to wrench the door off its hinges by means of jimmies and other burglarious instruments, and in this they also failed, though they were nearer success than they suspected, the door frame being almost loose from its fastenings when found this morning. Although several persons were sleeping on the premises they heard nothing. The burglars were probably frightened off by some noise. This is the fourth attempt on the same place in a few months.

THE GREEN-WORLOCK SUITS.

Text of the Judgment Delivered by Hon. Justice Drake in re Garnishees.

Reasons for Overruling the Order—The Assignment Takes Precedence.

Following is the text of the judgment given by the Hon. Mr. Justice Drake in the county court cases wherein creditors of Green, Worlock & Co., sought to protect themselves by attaching debts due the bank:—

MAY 14, 1894.

Drake, J.: In all these cases the same objections are made with the exception that the garnishee Saunders claims he has not been properly served with the summons and relies on section 89 and 24 of the county court act. The summonses in these cases were not served by any officer of the court or by anyone specially authorized in writing, and section 24 directs all summonses and other processes of the county courts to be served by the sheriffs of the different counties and their deputies and section 89 gives authority to the court or the registrar as an addition to the mode of service to specially appoint someone for the purpose. I think the service bad. No one can serve any of the documents specified except he fills the statutory requirements. In the other cases I intend to deal with the judgment as a judge.

A plaintiff having a claim for a liquidated amount may issue a summons requiring the defendant to file a dispute note, and in default may be entitled to final judgment. The chief requirement here is that the service in such a case must be personal.

In these cases the plaintiffs issued default summonses and obtained judgment.

By section 6 of the act, 1892, the plaintiff may at the time of issuing a summons for debt or liquidated demand or thereafter on affidavit swearing to the debt, obtain a summons against anyone indebted to the defendant, and such summons shall be returnable at the same court as the summons to the defendant and the garnishee may file a dispute note as to his liability to the defendant and in case of default the same consequences follow as in the case of an ordinary debtor.

It is contended that as a default summons is not returnable at any court if no dispute note is filed therefore this section 9 is not applicable to this form of proceeding, but the plaintiff must take out an ordinary plaint.

If a dispute note is filed the registrar gives notice to the defendant of the day of trial which would in ordinary cases be at the first court held after filing the dispute note.

If no dispute note is filed the judgment is entered up without coming to court. In my opinion the objection is untenable. The plaintiff can use either form of plaint in the original action and in case there is no dispute note filed by defendant the plaintiff obtains a default judgment and thus brings his summons against the garnishee on to be heard at such court as the registrar fixes, if there is a dispute note filed in the original action then the garnishee plaint is heard at the same court at which the original plaint is to be heard.

The next objection is that the judgment debtor must be served before the garnishee is served. There is nothing in the act to warrant the contention.

The effect of the service of the garnishee summons is to bind all debts due from the garnishee to the defendant and the debts are bound until the original plaint is disposed of.

Another objection is that the garnishee summons mentions the return day of the original plaint at 5 April whereas no return day is inserted in the plaint itself. This is not a good objection, the return day would have been 5 April if a dispute note had been filed as being the next court, the garnishee is not prejudiced by the mistake if it is one.

The chief objection in all these cases is that the debtors, Green, Worlock & Co., had made an assignment for the benefit of creditors before the service of the original plaint, none of these summonses were served before the 5th of March.

The effect of a garnishee order was discussed in Holmes vs. Tilton, 5 Ellis & Bl: 65 and ex parte Piller 17, D, 604 in connection with the Bankruptcy Act and the result of the cases appears to be that an attaching order does not operate as an assignment of the debt to the judgment creditor nor is it a delivery in execution—it is similar to an injunction restraining the payment of money until the rights of parties have been ascertained.

The act of 1894 amending the Creditors Trust Deeds Act, does not interfere with the creditors' right to garnishee, but renders the order when obtained valueless as against the creditors trust deed—unless the garnishee order is completely executed by payment. It in fact places judgment and garnishee orders on the same footing, a judgment not completed by execution is no avail after a deed has been executed and a garnishee summons is not equivalent to a fi. fa.: It is merely a claim against a debtor to the judgment debtor, and has to be completed by a judgment or order absolute before it is of any effect.

See Dilbury vs. Brown, 30 L. J., Q.B. 46.

The effect of this alteration in the law is similar to the judgment in Hilliard vs. Lougrid, M. & M. 297, when it was held that a verbal promise which was sufficient evidence of a new contract to bar the statute of limitations could not be given in evidence after the passage of Lord Tenterden's act even in an action brought before the passage of that act but tried afterwards, Pardo vs. Brigham, 4 chap, 735. See also Kimbray vs. Draper, 3, Q. B., 160.

In my opinion the assignment for the benefit of creditors takes precedence of all judgments obtained herein and a portion of all attachments not completed by actual payment.

I therefore give judgment for the garnishees but without costs.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

A Government Meeting to Elect Delegates Favors the Opposition.

Port Hammond, May 14.—A meeting was held last night at Port Haney to select delegates to the government convention. At about 8.30 p. m. Mr. Webber called for order, and moved, seconded by Mr. Haney, that Mr. Stephens act as chairman and Mr. Murray as secretary, which was carried.

Mr. Stephens, on taking the chair, stated it was a government meeting only, although out of the 35 electors present there was fully two to one in favor of the opposition.

The secretary then read the following motion:

Moved by Mr. Thompson, seconded by Mr. Dockstender, that the following gentlemen act as delegates: Messrs. Haney, Dockstender, Carr, Webber, Lailty, Smith and Kirk.

Mr. Lailty here stated that he would be unable to attend, as he was very busy at this time and would prefer to have some one else elected in his place.

Mr. Webber stated that Mr. Lailty could vote by proxy.

Mr. Isaac protested against the form of electing delegates.

Cries of "question" and general uproar.

The chairman then put the motion, when only seven voted in favor of it. The opposition declined to vote. Great laughter followed at the smallness of the government vote.

Mr. Webber then said he believed there were some present who were aspiring for political honors, and perhaps they would like to address the meeting.

Mr. Kelley being present took the floor and gave a great harangue. He said he had been in the country a long time and had always been on the ground floor. (Roars of laughter and general uproar.)

Mr. White asked Mr. Kelley if he was not lately on the opposition side.

Mr. Kelley—No, I have been independent. (Great laughter.)

Mr. Lazenby asked if Mr. Kelley was in favor of taking that portion of Maple Ridge municipality lying to the west of Pitt river and giving it to the Coquitlam municipality.

Mr. Kelley—Most certainly. (Hisses.)

Mr. Webber stated that Mr. Kelley was quite right. (Great laughter and general uproar; cries of order by the chairman.)

Mr. White asked if Mr. Kelley would favor prohibition.

Mr. Kelley replied that he would vote with the majority on the question. He resumed his seat amid silence.

Loud cries for Mr. Isaac brought that gentleman to his feet. He stated that he would be glad of the government nomination and went on to refer to the school question, roads and wide tire act. The latter, he said was only child's play. Mr. Isaac said if nominated he would be an independent supporter of the government.

A Voice—What stand would you take in the event of the defeat of the present government, which is about certain? (Cheers.)

Mr. Isaac said he was not in a position to say. (Great laughter.)

Mr. Webber then moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was carried, and cheers for the Queen were given.

Then followed the greatest event of the night, when a voice called for cheers for the opposition, which were given most heartily, the government supporters looking black and hissing, which, however, could not be heard above the great outburst of cheering for the opposition. The meeting was composed of fully two-thirds of opposition supporters. Comment is needless, no cheers being offered for the government.

SAM'S ELOQUENCE.

Orator Greer Has Dark Designs—Hope for the Telegram.

Nanaimo, May 15.—It is intimated that M. Bate, sr., is to be the candidate for South Nanaimo in the government interest, while Tully Boyce will receive the nomination for the opposition. It is known that the "Five Acre" blocks and Chase river have cast almost a solid vote for Boyce, and as these two districts control the ruling votes it may be confidently expected that Boyce will receive the nomination, which practically means a seat in the legislature. The opposition are well organized and the committees will work hard to place their candidates at the head of the poll. Samuel Greer is expected to attend the first public meeting held in Thomas Keith's interests for the purpose of exploding some charge which he thinks will help to defeat the election of Keith. The government party think this is a strong card and expect it to surprise the electors.

A scheme has been proposed to the respective members of the Miners' Union and the Reform Club to purchase the [illegible] proposition is to form a joint stock company, shares in which are to be held exclusively by the workingmen, and of course it is to be run in their interest. It is stated that the plant can probably be bought for the price of the first mortgage, as those who were interested in it care very little what becomes of it. Some of the compositors have expressed their willingness to take stock, and these few are doing what they can to promote another paper for Nanaimo.

The hose reel team were out practising last evening for the contest against all comers which is to take place on the Queen's birthday. It is expected that teams from Vancouver and Westminster will be present.

All connections have been made that will admit of the street being lit by the arc lights to-nights. The New V. C. Co. have generously permitted the wire to be attached to their plant so as to save the citizens from inconvenience.

It is understood that Golden lodge, C. O. O. F, and Loyal Star lodge intend to go over to the I. O. O. F. If the transfer is made several other lodges in the district may follow suit.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Sunday evening when the officers for the ensuing year were elected. A vote of thanks was tendered to the officers for the past year, and also to Mr. Robins for a munificent donation of $300. The receipts for the year were $1781 and expenditure $1618.44, leaving a balance of $163.20.

They left the Driard at 1 o'clock and were back again by 2:45. The run to Sidney was made in 26 minutes, the train at one time being run at a speed of 37 miles an hour. —The coming appearance in this city at the Victoria theatre of so popular and artistic a couple as Joseph Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davies in their excellent play entitled "The New South," will be a matter of special appreciation by the innumerable patrons and friends of this duo. Their latest play comes here with the endorsement of the united press of New York, where the production of "The New South" at the Broadway theatre for one hundred consecutive times marked a period in the career of Mr. Grismer and Phoebe Davies that was successful beyond measure. The scenes of the play are laid in the state of Georgia, and the action supposed to occur in the year 1885. The plot hinges on the convict labor act empowering the governor to use his discretion in leasing out convicts of the penitentiary for servitude to convicts [illegible] require manual labor. Mr. Grismer in the play assumes the role of Captain Harry Ford, U. S. A., a young cavalryman stationed in the south and Miss Davies appears as Georgia Gwynne, one of the South's true heroines of later days. The drama in no way can be considered a war play as its scenes, situations and pictures presented probably suggest. The role in which Miss Davies appears in "The New South" has been described as being particularly well suited to her pretty and effective ways, while Mr. Grismer as Captain Ford is authority for the statement that he has seldom had the pleasure on the stage of appearing in more congenial part. Special scenery and other elaborate effects are carried and the production of this marked, and perhaps altogether most brilliant success of the season in the dramatic way in this city will be interesting.

—In the police court Ah Song was convicted of the theft of firewood from Sing Ching and was sentenced to one month in jail. Joseph Leleine, drunk, was fined $5. Henry Farran, charged with a similar offence, was dismissed, first offence.

—It is said that there are a half dozen "sure thing" men in the city circulating about and getting acquainted in preparation for a harvest during the celebration week. However, all the warning and advice in the world would not save the "verdant." He seems born to his fate.

—One result of the heavy rain to-day was to postpone the sale of flowering plants until to-morrow, Wednesday, at 2 p.m. This was considered necessary owing to many of the plants being in full bloom, which would have suffered considerably. The sale will positively be held to-morrow, rain or shine, at H. Cuthbert & Company's sales rooms.

—The Victoria Yacht club, under whose auspices the yacht racing on May 25 will take place, has made a new rule as to measurements. It was originally intended to follow the Y. R. —There is a very good thing going the rounds on E. E. Blackwood, of the Northern Pacific. He yesterday offered grievous insult to the majesty of the law, but in such a way that it was laughed at most heartily. Mr. Blackwood went to the court house to attend the royal commission and was wandering around in the mazes looking for the place. Luckily, he thought he saw his friend Frank Gregory. He greeted him warmly with "Hello, Frank, old man!" Frank did not reply very cordially. Then Mr. Blackwood saw Todd Aikman. "How are you, Todd? Where is that royal commission sitting? Up in the attic?" Mr. Aikman looked disturbed. Then Mr. Blackwood looked farther around the corner and saw Mr. Justice Walkem. Advancing very cordially he said "Why, how are you, Judge Walkem?" The justice and two lawyers broke out in a hearty laugh and after some five minutes Mr. Blackwood realized that he had interrupted the proceedings of a life sized chamber court.

It is reported in Winnipeg that A. A. C. Lariviere, M. P. for Provencher, is to resign, and will be appointed postmaster for Winnipeg. Mr. Hargrave, the present postmaster, being superannuated or transferred. Mr. Lariviere's appointment would not be a popular one to Winnipeggers.

Mr. Boyd, M. P., has returned from Winnipeg to Ottawa. He emphatically denied the rumor that Lisgar will shortly be opened by the appointment of A. W. Ross, M. P., to the lieutenant-governorship. A couple of years ago a great sensation was caused in Montreal by the announcement that Louis Martin, a Roman Catholic priest, had abjured his religion and married, had disapeared, and the Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal was charged with having something to do with his disappearance. He was traced to a Trappist monastery at Tracadie, N. S., and finally decided to return to his wife and children whom he has since supported by teaching French, but he found it very hard to make ends meet. Another sensation has now been caused by the announcement that he has again disappeared. He has lately, it appears, been in correspondence with some of the church authorities and it is believed that he has decided to return to the fold for good.

The Campbell heresy case has been settled. At a conference at Carleton Place between the presbytery and Professor Campbell the latter agreed to the following: First—That the statements of the Old Testament writers, as to the character of God, were true as far as they went, but in exceptional cases were not the whole truth. Second—That in a great majority of cases God, when smiting in judgment and discipline and chastisement, acts in accordance with the general laws or through secondary causes. The presbytery deemed the satisfactory and reported to the synod. The synod expressed its thanks to the presbytery for the amicable settlement of this celebrated case which has been a vexed question for the past two years and which at one time threatened to cause a serious rupture in church circles.

AN OLD VOLCANO.

One of the lesser mountains of Chili, whose summit is nearly one thousand feet lower than that of our Mount Washington, has been the talk of that country for a year past. Without a note of warning it developed into a very lively volcano, and its eruptions have destroyed much property, including the humble homes of many farmers living near its base. This sudden outburst was all the more surprising because no one had ever suspected that Mount Calbuco was capable of such behavior. Calbuco was in recent years regarded as a volcano that centuries ago had lost every spark of vitality. On February 24, 1893, Dr. Hans Steffen, while about twenty miles north of Puerto Montt, a little south of 41 degrees south latitude, observed white clouds on the eastern slope of Calbuco. He thought nothing of it until the next day, when he saw conclusive proof that these clouds were a part of phenomena showing beyond doubt that the long-lost activity of the volcano had been regained.

From that time until October 23, the date of the latest advices received from that isolated part of the world, Calbuco showed considerable and almost incessant activity with occasional outbursts of much fury. On that day a rain of ashes fell upon Osorno, sixty miles away, obscuring the sun so that at midday lamps were burning in all the houses of the town. The detonations that marked the more violent outbursts were plainly heard. On the same day the farmers on the south shore of Lake Llanquihue, a little north of the volcano, barely escaped with their lives, and saw all their property destroyed. Their harvest was ruined, their land made worthless by the volcano sand that covered it and their cattle were killed.

Even long before October the region of which the little mountain is the centre had been rendered uninhabitable. For miles around the forests had been destroyed by showers of hot ashes. One day there was a rain of red hot stones about the size of an egg that did considerable damage. The rich meadows in the river valleys were covered with sand and ashes. Early in the series of eruptions the snow on one side of Calbuco was melted in a few hours by the heated material scattered over it. The result was a flood in one of the rivers that destroyed much property. At no time have any fire or lava flows been observed, but severe earthquakes, which frequently accompany volcanic outbursts, have not been lacking.—New York Sun.

CHARLES DE LESSEPS.

The removal of the name of Charles de Lesseps from the list of the Legion of Honor has provoked a good deal of sympathy for that unfortunate man, who is felt to have been, in some respects, the victim of circumstances. Writing on this subject the Paris correspondent of the London Times remarks: "The chancellerie of the Legion of Honor was forced by its own regulations to take this step. As M. Charles de Lesseps was condemned on the charge of 'corruption of functionaries,' necessarily some notice had to be taken of it at the headquarters of the Legion of Honor, but as M. Ferdinand de Lesseps was not thus condemned, the Legion of Honor has not been obliged to treat the father in the same way as the son. The silence of the French press hitherto on this matter clearly shows the profound pity felt for M. Charles de Lesseps, who, throughout this affair has been a martyr to filial love, and who during his painful trial maintained an attitude which moved and touched everybody. As soon as he was released he was the object of numerous testimonies of regard. The sympathies which he had created or won in prosperity remained with him in adversity, and none of those who have ever known him speak of him except with a profound and serious commiseration. In saying this I am only the echo of all whom I have questioned, and I venture personally to add that I have never met anyone who has borne with greater resignation or more simple courage the heavy load cast by unbending human justice upon his shoulders."—New York Post.

Remains's Mystery.

Rahway, N. J., May 12.—Interest in the mystery which surrounds the murder of a girl found dead one morning in the latter half of March, 1887, was revived last night. She was found lying in the roadway of Central avenue with her throat cut. Her face was mangled beyond recognition, and her identity was never discovered. Conductor Sherman Frazer says a strange, elderly woman approaching met him near the depot yesterday afternoon and asked him and an told her where the girl who was found murdered was buried. They drove to the cemetery, where the woman stood silently looking at the grave for several minutes. Then she read the inscription on the tombstone and remarked the absence of a name. Then she said: "This young woman was respectable, and her parents were respectable." The woman remained at he grave for half an hour and cried bitterly. She then requested to be taken to the spot where the girl was killed and there examined the surroundings. She would not tell her name, but was from the west and had recently moved to New York.

A curious story is told of Mgr. Guigues, the first Roman Catholic bishop of Ottawa. The Protestants of the town had often subscribed to Roman Catholic enterprises, and it was thought that a little reciprocity would be in order. As Christ's church (Anglican) was about to be rebuilt the bishop was asked whether he would contribute. His Lordship said the rule or practice of his church prohibited him from subscribing for the erection of a Protestant edifice, but he would gladly aid in the pulling down of the old church. Whereupon he subscribed for that purpose.

HERE AND THERE.

A Harvest of Observations from Various Fields.

And now electricity has been found to furnish a cure for frostbite. Dr. Helbing has been successful in Germany in twenty cases in healing people of frozen noses. The treatment consisted in applying electrodes to the opposite sides of the nose and passing a moderately strong current for five or ten minutes, moving the electrodes about. The immediate result is a reddening of the tissues, which may last several days, after which the skin and the flesh resume their normal condition. In extreme cases from ten to fifteen applications have been found necessary.

It is perhaps not generally known that petroleum can now be produced artificially by a very cheap process and simple method, being the distillation, in a strong iron vessel, under a pressure of twenty-five atmospheres, of the animal fats and oils at a temperature of 300 to 400 degrees C. Under favorable conditions 70 per cent. of the fatty oil is transformed into petroleum, which is 90 per cent. of the theoretical yield. The product thus obtained has been found to be in every particular identical with natural petroleum. It is suggested that, with modifications of the conditions in the process, oils of different grades may be produced.

Discours, the beadle of the church of St. Roch, in Paris, died on Sunday. He was almost famous for his tall stature, imposing air and portly figure, and was at once the tallest of the Paris beadles and the senior of them all. Pravost, the beadle of the Madeleine, stood next in stature, and after him came the beadle of the Notre Dame, an ex-drum major, who was engaged two years ago by Archbishop Richard. Discours was a passionate lover of billiards, and went every evening to play at the Cafe Regence, where he used to measure his skill with M. Grevy before the latter was president of the republic. He constantly saw there a man taller than himself, Mr. Theodore Tilton, the American poet, who went to La Regence to play chess, and was more than a match for Grevy. The post of beadle in a Paris church is a much envied one among the class of men who compete for it. At Notre Dame, the Madeleine and St. Clotilde the salary is £60, and there are perquisites at grand weddings and funerals. In the smaller churches the pay is £40. The gorgeous uniform and silver wand are provided by the vestry.—London Daily News.

The Masons of Prince Rupert's lodge, Winnipeg, who were also members of the Wolseley Red River Expedition in 1870, some weeks ago commemorated the latter event by special services, and afterwards corresponded with Lord Wolseley, inviting him to re-visit the province. The following reply was read at the last meeting of the lodge: "Dublin, 16th March, 1894.—Worshipful Master and Brother,—Your letter has duly reached me, and I beg you and the brethren of your lodge will kindly accept my best thanks for having remembered me at your last meeting. I shall always look back with the deepest pride to having been associated with those gallant Canadians who contributed in 1870 to the creation of your splendid province. I should indeed enjoy a visit to your city were that possible at present, but whether I can or cannot ever do so it will always be a great pleasure to hear of its progress, its prosperity and its loyalty, and that our ancient craft flourishes there. The Red River expedition was my first independent command, and I gratefully remember the fine spirit that animated the Canadian soldiers who took part in it. I should very much like a photograph of those brethren who helped me so effectively in 1870. Wishing your lodge peace, love and harmony, and its members all happiness, I have the honor to remain, Worshipful Master, your obedient servant and brother. (Signed), Wolseley, General, and Worshipful Master of the Military Lodge of Ireland." The photograph has been prepared as requested, and will be forwarded in a few days.

A most ingenious arrangement has been designed for one of the English lighthouses, designed to facilitate the substitution of one lamp for another, when it may be desired to change them, or in the event of the one in focus going wrong—the difficulty presented arising from the necessity of keeping the spare lamp out of the apparatus entirely, so as to prevent its interfering with the light emanating from the lamp in use, on account of the light showing all around the horizon. The change required under these circumstances is accomplished by means of a unique arrangement of rails, and three turn or shunt tables, on which the lamps can be freely run, which are placed on the service tables. One of these is in the centre of the apparatus, and is on the trapdoor, working vertically in guides and counterbalanced after the manner of a sash, so that a lamp may be lowered from the level of the top of the case to the floor of the light room; here the lamp is again received on rails, on which it can be conveniently run out on the easy to be recarboned and adjusted. The arrangement is such, therefore, that a lamp can be raised from the floor of the light room into the apparatus, the lamp in focus withdrawn into the turn tables and the fresh lamp run into the focus, the original lamp also shunted on to the hoist and lowered out of the apparatus, all in about eight seconds. Another feature perfecting the arrangement is that providing a three wick paraffine oil lamp, kept trimmed and ready for use in case of any failure of the electric current, and it can be lighted and put in focus at once.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A device to enable bicycle riders to observe vehicles, etc., approaching from the rear without being obliged to turn and look back has been patented recently. The attachment consists of a yoke shape or arch bar fastened on the handle bar of the bicycle by means of two clamps, and supporting a mirror, which is hinged to a V-shaped keeper, so that it can be moved up or down the standard bar by pressing the two ends of the keeper together, and releasing at the desired height. The mirror itself may be placed at the inclination desired for distance or near by observation by simply pressing it to the desired position, where it will be kept by pawls catching into the toothed keeper. The adjustment of the mirror to the proper place can be done with one hand only while riding. All the parts of this bicycle attachment are very simple and not likely to get out of order.—Philadelphia Record.

THE MOTION RESCINDED.

Council Declares That Fire Horses Will Not be Used in Street Sprinklers.

Local Men Will Get the Work in Case of Passage of Sewerage By-Law.

The city council met at 8 last night. All the aldermen present. Mayor Teague in the chair.

City Clerk Dowler reported the following communications received and referred to the committees mentioned:

Sewerage—Fred Weldon, calling attention to the condition of the drain from near the railroad track along Russell street to the water.

Streets—J. P. Burgess and six others requesting that Alfred street between Montreal and St. Lawrence receive attention.

Robert Mason, offering for sale a quantity of broken rock on the ground near the Dallas road. Referred to Reloher street.

Water—Herbert Cuthbert, complaining of the practice of shutting off the water supply from the houses along Stanley avenue without any notice being given.

E. E. Shepherd, requesting that the city water be laid along Edmonton road to his premises, No. 3 on said street.

Electric Light—J. J. Austin, offering for sale a certain property as a site for the new electric light plant.

Thomas Wilson and 29 others, petitioning for an electric light on Frederick street.

Mr. Cartner applied for the position of advisory engineer for the electric light plant.

Ald. Munn said Mr. Cartner had reference not only to the question of electric light, but also to the establishment of a crematory for the burning of all garbage and the creating of heat thereby to run the electric light plant.

Ald. Dwyer thought that Mr. Stickles should have the same opportunity.

Ald. Munn said there was no connection at all. Mr. Stickles had been appointed engineer and Mr. Cartner had a different subject altogether for consideration.

The matter was referred to subsequent meeting of the full board.

Auditor Raymur forwarded to the council a financial statement for the four months ending April 30th. The statement enumerated the sums voted for various purposes, the authorized expenditure and the balances on hand. This statement is for the purpose of giving the council an idea of how the revenue has been spent and what sums are still available.

Ald. Munn moved for the rescinding of the resolution authorizing the using of a team of the fire department for the sprinkler.

Ald. Baker said the resolution was not in order, he having voted in the negative when the matter was previously brought up. The sprinkling should not be done out of the general fund; the persons benefited should pay for the sprinkling. Storekeepers would have to pay only 25 cents a week. The sprinkler was never used on Fort street, James Bay, Victoria West and Rock Bay, and why should the residents of these localities pay for the sprinkling? He suggested that a teamster go and canvass for sprinkling; he would make a good thing out of it.

Ald. Ledingham favored Ald. Baker's idea. This system was adopted in Seattle.

Ald. Wilson stated that Ald. Baker was talking away from the question, which was the rescinding of a former motion. If the fire horses were used in the sprinklers it might be disastrous to the city in case of fire. Chief Deasy of the fire department had fully satisfied him on that point.

Ald. Baker urged that if the fire department horses could not be used in the sprinklers they should have a practice wagon, as the regular wagons and the apparatus in them were being damaged. He did not wish to curry favor with the fire department as did some aldermen (Cries of oh! oh!), but he made the suggestion in the interests of the city of Victoria.

Ald. Munn said he was proud to say that the fire department was the best department in the city. There was not a man who did not take an interest in his work. If the fire department horses were put in the sprinklers there would be an excuse if in the case of a large fire the firemen were slow in getting out. Regarding the sprinkling of the streets, he said that all citizens used the streets down town, and storekeepers should not pay for the sprinkling. The sprinkling cost only $1,000 a year.

Ald. Dwyer did not wish to lessen the efficiency of the fire department. He had been led to believe that there were twelve horses in the department, but there were only ten, and two of them were colts. He believed that the fire department should have an exercise wagon.

Mayor Teague said there had been a great deal of latitude in the addresses of aldermen. The question was about horses and not wagons and street sprinklers.

Ald. Baker objected, saying that Ald. Munn was not in order, he having voted in the negative. All parliamentary authorities upheld him.

Mayor Teague did not wish the quotation of authorities. He put the motion and declared it carried.

Ald. Baker called for ayes and nays. They were taken as follows:

Ayes—Ald. Ledingham, Humphrey, Vigelius, Styles, Harris, Munn and Wilson. Nays—Ald. Dwyer and Baker.

The finance committee reported accounts totalling $3,000. Passed.

The sewerage committee reported re the Johnson street ravine that City Engineer Wilmot ascertain what amount the property owners will contribute to the required improvements.

The street committee reported in favor of employing the team of G. Bennett at $3.50 a day for street sprinkling when required. The committee have the matter of improvements on Jubilee avenue under consideration. It advised the purchase of rock from Mr. Mason at 75 cents a yard.

Ald. Baker said as a member of the committee he wished his recommendation regarding street sprinkling left out of the report.

Ald. Harris said the mere cost of $200 should not prevent the business centre being properly sprinkled.

Ald. Wilson suggested that two teams be engaged.

Mayor Teague asked whether the street committee would accept the proposed amendment.

The suggestion was taken favorably and inserted and the report adopted.

The council tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Munroe of Michigan street for donating a quantity of flowers.

Ald. Humphrey asked that the council name the commissioners of sewerage at the close of the meeting. He did not wish that the suggestions made by aldermen be reported.

Ald. Munn said the electric light committee had quite a number of sites offered for the location of the electric light plant.

Ald. Wilson wanted the council to visit the sites.

Mayor Teague thought that a list of sites might be sent to each alderman by to-morrow (Tuesday) and that a meeting be called Wednesday afternoon.

Ald. Dwyer said the council should visit these sites.

Ald. Harris said it would take too long.

Ald. Dwyer said he had been asked in case the sewerage by-law passed would employment be given to the citizens of Victoria and the contract be let to a Victoria contractor. He would like an expression of opinion at the council.

Ald. Wilson said he understood that the work would be let out in small contracts. There would be no chance of a large contractor coming in. The work would be given to local workmen. Two or three blocks would constitute a contract. He would like an expression of opinion. Mayor Teague said the council could let the contract to any one they liked.

Ald. Humphrey thought it was the opinion to let the work to citizens. He had seen Mr. McPean dismiss good men and import "dagoes" in their stead.

Mayor Teague thought a motion should be put.

Ald. Dwyer moved that it was the opinion of the council that the citizens of Victoria should be given work in preference to outsiders.

Ald. Baker argued that the matter had been left in the hands of the commissioners.

The motion was put and carried and the council adjourned at 9.30.

SHE IS BRIGHT AND HAPPY.

Getting Fat and Plump.

"Your Lactated Food is the Best in the World."

A Winnipeg mother, in a letter to the manufacturers of Lactated Food, says: "When my baby was three months old, I found that I was unable to nurse it properly, and was obliged to use some form of prepared food. I bought a certain food that I had heard of, but found, after a few days' trial, that it did not agree with my baby. I gave up the use of this food, and went to another store where your Lactated Food was strongly recommended. I purchased a small tin in order to try it. To my joy, baby relished it, and slept better than formerly. Now I buy Lactated Food in the large size, and must say it is a wonderful diet for babies; my child is always bright and happy, and is getting fat and plump. Your Lactated Food is the best in the world, and I strongly recommend it to all mothers."

CONSENT MORE THAN PROPOSAL

"Leading Them On" an Art Understood by Many Girls.

The mere formal words "Will you marry me?" are not in a majority of cases so much a proposal as a consent, says the New York Evening Sun. What women understand among themselves as "leading him on" is the essential proposal of marriage. Without this encouragement few men would come to the direct point of acceptance. "Leading him on" is accomplished in innumerable ways. In England it is done by the intervention of the mother, who invites him to dinner, to share her opera box, by favoring glances and open confidences, thus practically asking, "Will you marry my daughter?" The silent but no less severe inquiry of the mother is followed by acts of favoritism, looks and conversation of the girl playing her mute inquiry. The playful and delicate conveyancing of Ferdinand by Miranda in "The Tempest" is a charming example of the feminine art of "leading him on." To a young man in society "Barkis is willin'" is the most humanely direct reply on his part, except that a knowledge of the conventions teaches him to alter the phrase into an inquiry. There is an increasing number of women who believe that women should more directly interpose in their own affairs, and that the question of choice should be openly left with them. It is significant that women are beginning to propose in stories. On the stage women's proposals are always accepted. The right of man, however, to receive a proposal carries with it the right to refuse. To most women, however, the relation of the sexes as conveyed by the old myth still holds. Atalanta runs and Kippomones pursues.

KOOTENAY CROPPINGS.

Improvement in Mial Facilities—Injunction Against Townsite Owners. Nelson Miner.

A quantity of machinery has arrived for the Hall Mines Company, consisting of ore crushing and air compressing plant. It will promptly be taken up the hill.

The past week has been a dull one as far as mining gossip has been concerned, and no authentic news of any description has reached us. At the same time as the snow clears off and the roads are opened up owners and prospectors are beginning to move.

It is reported that an injunction has been served on C. J. Lowen, acting as agent for Rosebery townsite, restraining the parties who are said to be interested in that townsite from clearing and otherwise dealing with the same. The result of this injunction may materially effect the future of New Denver.

Carl Kleinschmidt has come back from his placer claims on the Salmon. He reports everything in good order. As soon as he reaches bed rock he intends to put on a large force of men. Mr. Kleinschmidt has also been working on his claims on Kootenay lake.

The C. P. R. is instituting a freight arrangement which will probably be of great benefit to business men in Kootenay. A special car with freight for Kootenay country will be made up to leave Vancouver every Tuesday during the season and will reach Nelson on Saturdays. Shippers and merchants are advised to notify their agents on the coast that consignments for this special service must reach Vancouver not later than five p.m. on Tuesday evenings.

"We have to contradict a statement which appeared last week in our local contemporary to the effect that one of the owners of the Miner hissed Mr. Gladstone at the opening of the Imperial Institute. The statement of course referred to Mr. Clive Phillips-Wolley, who writes to us as follows: "Though I was there I neither heard Mr. Gladstone hissed nor did I hiss him. I believe that it is true that some people did so far forget themselves as to hiss the great Liberal leader, but their action was condemned by men of both parties. I fancy our contemporary will have the courtesy to acknowledge my answer and to believe that I have too much admiration for 'brains' either in political or journalistic opponent to resort either to hissing or mis-representation. Yours Truly,

"Clive Phillips-Wolley."

THE LATE J. B. WILSON.

A Large Concourse of Friends of the Deceased—Service in Grace Church.

The funeral of the late J. B. Wilson, B. A., English master of the collegiate institute, says a late Winnipeg paper, took place from the residence of the deceased, 244 Edmonton street, to Grace church and thence to St. James' cemetery. It had been intended to have the funeral service at the house, but owing to the large number of the pupils and friends of the deceased who wished to attend, it was decided to hold them at Grace church.

This morning a special meeting of the school board was held at ten o'clock, and was largely attended. Action was taken to enable the collegiate institute pupils and teachers of the other schools who so desired to attend the funeral. For this purpose the institute was closed for this afternoon and the teachers of the other schools who so desired given leave to close their departments for the afternoon.

It was moved by Mr. Porter, seconded by Mr. Carman, and resolved, "that the board and its officials attend the funeral of Mr. J. B. Wilson in a body from his late residence, 244 Edmonton street, to Grace church, at 2:30 o'clock on this day."

It was further resolved on motion of Mr. Patterson, seconded by Mr. Fabson, that the board desire to express its supreme sorrow at the sudden demise of Mr. J. B. Wilson, late one of the assistant masters of the collegiate institute, and they regret the loss of his faithful services. They also wish to express their sympathy with the widow and relatives of the deceased in their bereavement. Secretary Mulvey was instructed to forward a copy of the resolutions to the family.

The floral offerings sent to the residence of the deceased this morning were numerous and beautiful, a number of them being supplied from the Royal greenhouses. These comprised wreaths from the different organizations with which Mr. Wilson was connected, as follows: A handsome wreath of white roses from Grace church, with the words "Our Brother," a large wreath from the teachers' association; a large anchor from the members of his class at Grace church, with the words, "Our Leader;" a wreath of roses and lilies from the school board; a very handsome pillow from the teachers and pupils of the collegiate institute; a bouquet of roses and lilies from the girls of form three, and a spray of roses sent during his illness by Misses Mooney and McEwan, but which have continued unchanged and very beautiful.

A large number were present at the church, including the school board, which attended in a body, the pupils of the collegiate institute, the teachers from the city schools, Mr. Wilson's class in Grace church, besides a large number of personal friends. The services were conducted by Rev. G. A. Turk, and were of a most impressive character. After the close of the service a large concourse followed the remains to their last resting place in St. James' cemetery. Those who acted as pallbearers were Principal Schofield of the collegiate institute, Messrs. Garrett and Morrow of the collegiate staff, Thos. Ryan, George Rogers and S. R. Parsons.

Deceased was son-in-law of Major Preston in Vancouver and brother-in-law of W. J. Hanna of this city.

A GREAT COPPER MINE.

Production of the Rio Tinto Mine for the Year 1893.

The London Westminster Gazette says: "The three greatest copper mines in the world are the Anaconda, the Capulet and Hecla—both in America, one in the west and the other in the east—and the Rio Tinto, in Spain. The last named, as already announced, will pay 7 per cent. for 1893, on the same as in 1892. The report now issued shows what work was performed by the company last year. The quantity of pyrites extracted was, for shipment, 477,656 tons, and for local treatment 854,346 tons; total, 1,332,002 tons. It is noticeable that the average copper contents per ton was a shade under 3 per cent. The quantities invoiced to consumers in the United Kingdom, Germany, Belgium and the United States amounted to 469,339 tons, or 33,581 tons in excess of the deliveries in 1892. The excess over 1892 would have been greater but for the coal strike, which affected to a considerable extent the consumption of the company's pyrites in this country during the latter months of the year. The copper production at the mines during the year amounted to 19,990 tons, and the copper pyrites shipped was 11,964 tons; total, 31,954 tons. The following quantities were brought to market: Refined copper, 18,858 tons; copper in pyrites, 11,265 tons; total, 30,123 tons. The whole of the stock of refined copper, copper in process, precipitate, and matter (in all 7,609 tons) are carried over at cost price. The reserve heaps now contain 101,867 tons of fine copper, which stands in the accounts of the company at [illegible]

DEAF AND BLIND

I heard musicians play;
Heard harp and viol, cornet and bassoon;
And deep, sweet strains gave forth their harmony.
Trying their best to say
All that the Master wrote; yet when the croon
Of the last wailing chord had slowly stopt,
The players—all unfeeling—spoke of beer,
And with a ghastly leer
Retailed the latest scandal; music dropt.

Whereat I marvelled sore—
For heaven seemed opened by their minstrelsy,
Strange that they entered not, but were content
With opening thus its door,
Leaving it wide for others and for me.
"It is their way," said Hans, my artist friend,
And to his studio eager led the way—
Where on his easel lay
His latest landscape—ah! you know the end?

For while, with entranced eye
I saw his work transfigured—reached at once
A meaning that he never knew at all—
Hans spoke of technique dry,
And as to Nature seemed a hopeless dunce;
Described his sketch with details not a few,
As though the scene it pictured was mere naught,
A mere effect just caught
To show his skill on—anything would do.

And so I marvelled more,
Yet thought! perhaps this is the way of things
In this strange-ordered earth. The player knows
Little beyond his score,
Nor hears the harmonies he sweetly rings
Through other's being; while the painter's eye
Is blind to beauty o'en a scribe may see.
And so the poet—he,
Not for himself writes songs that do not die.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Long Discussion Over the Grass, Worlock Dispute.

The exchequer court sat this morning, when the action of The Queen v. Weir and Webb was continued and judgment given allowing the owners $3,000 and interest, amounting in all to $3,196, for the land expropriated. Mr. Justice Burbidge said on account of the speculative value of the land, and in fact of almost all property in British Columbia, the litigation was not unreasonable, and he therefore gave no costs. There will be a declaration that the lands be vested in the crown.

The petition of William Smith for the removal of Messrs. Heisterman and Coltart from the board of trustees of Grass, Worlock & Co., came up before Judge Walkem this morning in open court. Many creditors of the bank were present and paid close attention to everything that occurred. Mr. E. V. Bodwell appeared for the petitioner and Mr. Helmcken and Mr. Fell for the assignees.

Mr. Bodwell, in opening, said that he applied for the removal of the two trustees under statute which provided that a judge in his discretion could order removal. He read the petition, which has been before set out in the Times, and the affidavit of William Smith verifying the petition. No act of misconduct, nor misappropriation, nor serious incompetency, is charged, but there is a want of harmony between the assignees and the creditors. Mr. Coltart, although he may be a man whose character is above reproach, still has interests which may interfere with the interests of the creditors in winding up the affairs of the bank, and he is therefore a man who is unsatisfactory to the creditors. Besides the 114 creditors for whom he was acting, and who represented over $100,000, felt that the assignees had not given them information as freely as they should.

Mr. Justice Walkem: It is the creditors whose interests have to be considered, and I should have thought that some arrangement would have been made. Are there no Ontario cases on the question?

Mr. Bodwell: No. Our act is taken from the Ontario act, but I can find no Ontario case. Apart from the statute, there is the original inherent power of a court of equity to order removal on sufficient ground shown, and if there is any doubt about it the statute provides for it.

Mr. Justice Walkem: It is true the judge has a discretion, but that discretion must not be acted on arbitrarily. There must be cause shown.

Mr. Bodwell closed by saying that as he represented creditors who were present at a meeting which was fully advertised, and who had passed the resolution set out in the petition with only two dissenting votes, it must be taken that the petition voiced the unanimous wish of the creditors, viz., that the two assignees already mentioned be removed and that Mr. Beaven be appointed in their stead.

Mr. Helmcken contended that the petition disclosed no cause sufficient to put his clients on their defence—no specific allegation of misconduct was alleged against any one, and they were in the dark as to what they were called on to answer. Besides, charges are made against all three trustees, but still Mr. Yates is to be retained, which is inconsistent. Particulars of complaint should have been given them, and he asked for an adjournment in order to cross-examine Mr. Smith on his affidavit and for investigation.

Mr. Justice Walkem: The act was passed with the view of preventing the wasting of the estate in litigation. If I put off the hearing for the investigation you ask, look at the expense of the examination of books, witnesses and parties, of counsel, typewriters and stenographers.

Mr. Helmcken: We are just as anxious to avoid expense as the petitioner is to throw us into expense.

Mr. Justice Walkem: The first thing that struck me is that there is a serious want of harmony between the trustees and the creditors, and that somebody must go. I should have thought that with regard to one of the trustees—I [illegible] he would have resigned. He may be a most honorable man. I asked if Mr. Heisterman is a creditor, and I should be very loath to interfere with him. It was not a wise thing on behalf of the creditors to appoint a clerk in the bank. It might have been for Mr. Worlock, as he was probably a competent accountant.

Mr. Helmcken then read an affidavit made by Mr. Yates, which stated that Mr. Coltart was employed in the bank simply as teller and not as confidential clerk, and then went into the question of the several meetings.

The assignees did not propose to take three or four years in winding up the estate and never expressed any such intention; that they proposed to pay off the British Columbia Corporation and proceed to realize on the securities they held which were worth three times the amount they were held for; that Mr. Coltart was of the greatest assistance to the other assignees from his knowledge of bookkeeping as was also Mr. Heisterman from his long experience here as a real estate agent.

Mr. Helmcken then proceeded to say that there was no want of harmony between the trustees and creditors but between the creditors themselves.

Mr. Justice Walkem—The affidavit of full enough. Where is the affidavit not full enough?

Judge Walkem—You don't say anything about the secured creditors. Some hold securities worth three times the amount of their claim. They should really have no say in it.

Mr. Bodwell then replied, saying that he agreed cause should be shown and that if he alleged misconduct or misappropriation particulars should be given. But here we have a serious disagreement between those who are really the owners and those who represent them.

Judge Walkem—If there is no harmony Mr. Yates is not full enough. It does not get to the pith of the matter.

Mr. Helmcken—Well the petition is not there will be waste. That is certain.

Mr. Bodwell, continuing, said the want of harmony might exist without good cause. It might be the infirmity of human nature but there it was as a fact.

Judge Walkem—It is patent on the face of it that there is discord and it is bound to increase. I can't see why they want to occupy the position if they are not wanted.

Mr. Fell replied to some statements made by Mr. Bodwell respecting the meeting at which the resolution was passed authorizing the petition. He was present and counted only 73 persons and he represented five creditors and voted against the resolution, yet it was stated that there were only two dissenting votes. The B. C. Corporation and Wells-Fargo Company are the only secured creditors. The hearing was adjourned until next Monday to enable the assignees to file further affidavits, assignees to pay costs of adjournment.

It will be attempted to show that a large majority of the creditors favor the retention of the present trustees.

Plague of Grasshoppers.

Barrie, Ont., May 15.—From many trustworthy farmers in the surrounding townships it is learned that a grasshopper plague is threatened much in excess of last year, when the damage to the crops was enormous. Eggs were deposited in the ground last autumn, and are now hatching millions upon millions of young hoppers about the size of black flies, which are being turned out by the plough, especially in sandy soil.

DOWN IN TEXAS.

Austin, Tex., May 15.—The town is crowded with patrons of aquatic sports attracted here by the opening to-day of the international regatta, which continues till Friday evening. The prizes aggregate $2,000 and nearly all the great professional oarsmen of the world are on deck. One thousand dollars is the first prize for the single scull race, and John Teemer, Edward Durnan, Henry Peterson and Charles Stephenson will make a dash for it. George Hosmer will meet John Teemer in doubles, and Plaisted will also row double with Stephenson, the Australian. There will be scull races for amateurs. Since the last regatta the river has been dammed by a granite wall 1200 feet long and 60 feet wide, which so backs up the water as to form the largest artificial lake in the world. There are no currents and the water is protected from the wind by the mountains.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP.

New York, May 14.—For the Brooklyn handicap to-morrow horsemen have the race narrowed down to Sir Walter, Dr. Rice, Clifford, Henry of Navarre, Banquet, Sport and Ajax. The horses are named in the order of preference.

A late dispatch says: Everything is in readiness for the great handicap to-day. The weather is fine and the track is in good condition. It is believed 40,000 will be present at the time of the starting of the race. A dozen horses will go to the post well backed. Hundreds of racing men from all parts, even as far as San Francisco, are present. The home contingent favor Sir Walter, Ajax, Sport and Banquet in the order named. Some of the westerners pin their faith on Clifford. Indications are that there will be eighteen starters. The candidates were all given spins this morning, but they were handled gingerly, not being allowed to exert themselves. It was announced that the sheriff of Brooklyn would go to Gravesend with a posse, and had a warrant for the seizure of horses, jockeys, owners, etc. Applications for warrants were made by Peter Delacy in pursuance of his threat to interfere with the selling and running of the handicap.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 15.—The Brooklyn handicap was won by Dr. Rice, Henry of Navarre second, Sir Walter third. Time 2.07 1-4. Just before the race a deputy sheriff arrested three of the racing judges. They were taken to Gravesend town hall and arraigned before Judge Voorhees.

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—Chant won the Kentucky Derby, Pearl Long second, Sigurd third. No time.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It having been rumored that merchant tailoring firms in Victoria are employing Chinese labor in competition with white labor during these depressed times, we, the undersigned, after making a thorough investigation, are aware that the practice is not general, and we beg to inform the public that we do not and will not employ Chinese labor in the manufacture of our goods.

A Little Daughter

Of a Church of England minister cured of a distressing rash, by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mr. RICHARD BIRKS, the well-known Druggist, 207 McGill st., Montreal, P. Q., says:

I have sold Ayer's Family Medicines for 40 years, and have heard nothing but good said of them. I know of many

performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular being that of a little daughter of the Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years, in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and, at my recommendation, at last began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. I am sure, were he here to-day, he would testify in the strongest terms as to the merits of

JOHN McCALLUM,

The Fashionable TAILOR, 42 Broad Street.

There's no use talking, business has been unaccountably dull lately. I surmised there must be an Ethiopian in the wood pile somewhere. He has been located, and the rascal was of large proportions and a surprise.

"Humanity is so constituted that it will progress only under the stimulus of rivalry."—Lord Brougham. I quite agree with the noble lord. I like a spirit of fair and healthy rivalry, but when it is carried on to such an unhealthy condition as to necessitate the employment of Asiatic slavery in competition with white labor it is "out of sight" for me.

But take for starting points: The best goods in the market for the least money; high class and clean honest work; elegance in design, fit and finish, (with white labor) and perfection in every detail, then "the diel tak the hin'most" in a race of this kind.
